CONFIDENT

The past school year of 1933-34 has been a truly eventful one for a great nation. It has seen the American people inspired by reviving industry, and it has been symbolic of an economic recovery that has sent jobless millions back to vocations that for years had been decaying with the nation's morale. It has seen the nation go back to work. And so, the 1934 Phoenician, in truly modern fashion—graphically and in type—shows the modern school in step with the nation. The school at work!

PHENICIAN

This 1934 Phoenician, as a token of gratitude to one whose tireless work has aided many Phoenicians, is sincerely dedicated to H. M. Bargman, who, through unexcelled business administration, has made possible the school at work.

There is undoubtedly no larger task in Phoenix Union High School than the administration of school affairs. As competent and efficient a personnel as can be found anywhere is continually at work to make the student's life at Phoenix High as smooth as possible.

To the average student's view point, the administration department seeks only to disrupt an otherwise peaceful life by constantly checking up on unpleasant tardies, unexcused absences, and other distressing incidents. It plays, however, a most important part in the proper functioning of the school. From the most minute detail of making an order for pins for the sewing classes to the purchasing of 5000 gallons of oil for a week's fuel supply for heat, it functions. Or, from the slightest task of checking an absence excuse to the trying labors of explaining to the irate parent just why her son or daughter wasn't excused from a first period class.

In making out schedules for 4500 students and in accounting for and keeping track of other incidental trivialities, the Registrar's Office uses over six tons of newsprint annually.

It is obvious that accuracy must be considered at all times in the Administration Department, as this department is the life organ of the school and, with inefficiency here, the proper functioning of the school would cease.

Student Government

President	Earl Melby
Vice-President	Sue Navarre
Girls' Secretary	Thelma Price
Boys' Secretary	Francis Shaughnessy

Embodied in a spirit of modern democracy, student participation in government is evidence of a steady progressive movement in school administration at Phoenix Union High School.

The system of Student Body government in effect here is administered by one central governing body, the Board of Control, and is divided in two main divisions, the Girls' League and the Boys' Federation.

It is essential in a large school, such as Phoenix High, that all law making be carried on in a smaller body than the school at large. Each spring, however, every student in the Associated Student Body gets his turn at the political side of the school. This is election time, and, from the nominations in the annual assembly for this purpose until the final election, the political fervor of the student body is unrestrained. Everywhere are posters, personal cards, and even advertising in the school paper. Each student stands firmly behind his choice for office while classes are likely to be neglected in reckless abandon.

After the election, however, everyone cooperates harmoniously with the new officers, even though his own candidate was defeated. It is this student cooperation in government that makes it the efficient organ that it is today.

Minor divisions of administration built around the nucleus of student government are the advisory groups, which are divided by classes into boys' and girls' groups and meet for a period of 25 minutes each day.

With this splendid foundation for government and with the whole-hearted cooperation and willingness of the Associated Student Body at large, it is practically impossible for this system of student government to fail to function perfectly.

Presenting a most variable routine of duties is the position of Student Body president, held this year by Earl Melby. He presides over all general assemblies, making these assemblies practically the only place where he comes in contact with the school at large.

In the governmental part of the school he presides over the Board of Control, for here he must serve as a leader in determining school policies. He does not vote, however, except in the case of a tie. A unit closely associated with the Board of Control is the Traditions Committee, whose purpose it is to encourage worthy traditions inaugurated in the past and also to initiate new ones. Here again, the Student Body president officiates.

The school's "First Officer" also is the school's official spokesman and must officially represent the school in its intra-scholastic relations. Fulfilling this capacity sometimes dulls the attraction of this honored position. For, once this year, and once in the past, the Student Body president has had to apologize to authorities of other schools for certain discourtesies rendered their school.

Girls' League

From the time the "Big Sisters" grab their Freshman charges until Commencement, the Girls' League plays an indispensable part in the school career of all the girls in Phoenix High, furnishing the personal touch often lacking in large high schools.

Among the events sponsored each year, none finds a keener school-wide interest than the Girls' League Annual vaudeville, Les Folies. This year the girls netted over four hundred dollars on the production.

Girls' League officers probably have the most interesting work of any of the other Student Body officials, for each year they attend a Girls' League Conference in Southern California. This alone should beckon to all under-class girls to work for Girls' League official positions.

Climaxing the Girls' League social season is their annual Every Girls' Banquet, which is sponsored each spring, with an attendance so large that it must be held for two nights. The purpose of the banquet is the same as that of the Girls' League—to make new acquaintances and to renew old ones.

Boys' Federation

Burns, Wilson

For real accomplishment in student government, a good morale is desirable, and it is the purpose of the Boys' Federation to supply this good morale by furnishing interesting activities for the boys and serving as an administrative unit in carrying out the really serious purposes of the school.

Probably the greatest step taken by the Federation in accomplishing these ends is the annual Boys' Federation Banquet. The boys, in having their last few banquets, have been quite radical as to the provisions served. They have deviated from the usual ham and sweet potato fare to that of turkey and all the trimmings—something altogether new in meal etiquette at Phoenix High. At this annual Every Boys' "feed" the boys gorge themselves to capacity and for the next week or so pay penance for a turkey infested past.

The Boys' Federation each year presents the greatest comedy success of the season in the form of the Mor Follies, which nets about five hundred dollars. This money, and money made on the banquet, is used to buy clothes, books, and food for the more unfortunate students in school. In this manner the Boys' Federation performs a real service to the poor of this city.

National Honor Society

Students who show outstanding ability in scholarship in Phoenix Union High School are rewarded with membership in the Parnassus Club, and members of this club are treated each year at a banquet as guests of the Hiram Club of Phoenix

This spring, members of the Senior Class took two comprehensive tests, one given by the state and one given by the school. Counting the scores made on these tests as 25 per cent, and the students' grades for the four years as 75 per cent, the standing of each member of the Senior Class was determined.

From the upper 25 per cent of these, 105 students were chosen for the National Honorary Scholarship Society, with the student having the highest average being selected for valedictorian. This year the valedictorian was Meyer Wilson, the first boy to hold that position since 1926.

From the time the student enters Phoenix Union High School he patiently awaits the day he will become a senior. For it is this last year as an upper-classman when the climax of his entire school career is reached.

Each year the Senior Class sponsors a class picnic in the South Mountains, and each year hundreds of loyal Senior Class members flock to the picnic grounds to celebrate this old tradition.

Probably the greatest event undertaken by the Seniors is their annual class play. This year they presented Jane Ellen, a delightful three act comedy.

All students when they first enter high school make more or less solemn promises, secret and otherwise, that they will make Parnassus, the scholarship club, before they graduate. Consequently around ninety per cent of the Senior Class make a last valient effort to make grades of high enough merit to allow them to spend the last semester of their Senior year in the Parnassus Club. Around seven per cent of this number succeed.

Each Senior Girls' home room group at some time during the year entertains some Senior Boys' home room group. Every year this tradition grows in popularity.

The zenith of Senior activities is undoubtedly the Senior Ditch Day held every spring, and it seems to serve as a beckoning goal to envious underclassmen.

This spring the Class of 1934, a class of 746 students, graduates from Phoenix High—to go forth and carry the fame and traditional good-sportsmanship of Phoenix Union High School to all parts of the world.

Many graduates of Phoenix Union High School and also those of other high schools, have said that their Junior year in school was their happiest. Their reasons for these assertions were that they had no sorrow at the thought of graduating in the spring, and still they were upper classmen. These observations of many graduates are accurate rather than sentimental, for the Juniors enjoy all of the social privileges of the Seniors except Senior Ditch Day.

For many years past the Junior Class has had an annual picnic, and in almost as many years they have broken the attendance records for this type of function. Each year a large percentage of the class collect at the scene of the picnic en masse and enjoy themselves thoroughly.

This year the Junior Class carried on the Junior Play tradition in splendid fashion with their presentation of Mrs. Temple's Telegram. The money made on this production was used to entertain the Seniors in the Annual Junior-Senior Prom and Banquet.

This combination prom and banquet was originally in the form of two different occasions but was combined last year in the interests of economy to form a supper dance. The combination resulted in such a splendid success that the plan has been continued.

So it is with the Junior Class, in the opinion of many the best of the classes, although verbally not conceded so by the Seniors. Theirs is the title of upper-classmen but without the eternal sadness of graduation.

Characteristic of the Sophomore Class is their growing interest in school life, for previous to this time they have been growing more accustomed to the ways of the school.

One of the greatest events in the life of the new-Sophs is the changing of seats in assembly. They solemnly, but not so reluctantly, walk down from the balcony to take their new position at the rear of the Auditorium. True, the seats are not as good as their former ones, but the change is better than being on exhibition.

Characteristic of this year's Sophomore Class is their wont to follow in the footsteps of the Seniors by electing the same class president to succeed himself, because this year Jack Lindstrom was again chosen to head his class. Another Sophomore "hold-over" officer was Orville Lindstrom, who, this year, was elected class treasurer after serving as secretary during his Freshman year.

In the present class—one of the largest Sophomore classes in the history of the school—there is exceptionally good spirit, and theirs is the power to defeat the Freshmen in one of the novel, annual Coyote Day events.

Nor has this class been unrepresented in the field of athletics. Bond Harris, who is also the Sophomore Boy Representative to the Board of Control, distinguished himself by making the first team in football and proved to be an important factor in the school's war machine.

In the past, upperclassmen have derived much pleasure in deriding members of the Freshman Class, and the Freshmen have been forced to stand helplessly by and take it.

This year, however, they have so overshadowed their veteran ridiculers in interest in activities that remarks concerning their greenness would be senseless.

No less than 91 army minded Freshmen enrolled in the Military class and from all indications are doing well

But the place where the First Year men took their self styled superiors for a great deal of embarrassment was in grades. At the end of the first semester, 151 Freshmen posed magnificently on the First Semester Honor Roll. Upperclassmen were mentally perturbed but remained quiet.

The Freshmen did not stop here but wandered into the fields of athletics. Some 30 girls found their way into after school sports, while any number of boys took an active interest in intramural sports

Their cultural wants were not trivial either, and over eight hundred of the class members entered the Public Discussion Contest

The Freshmen have very decidedly entered the activities of the school and have made for themselves a good record to follow in their remaining years here.

In honoring outstanding Journalism students, nothing better can be offered than membership in the Quill and Scroll Society—the International Honor Society for High School Journalists.

The Phoenix chapter of this international organization goes one step further in rewarding blossoming journalists by presenting two medals each year, one for the student turning in the largest amount of copy, and one for the student turning in the largest amount of advertising. The reporting medal is pictured in the lower right hand corner of this page.

The club, headed this year by Herbert Diamond, last year's Reporting Award winner, sponsored many social activities for its members.

At the beginning of the second semester, 10 new members were taken into the club, each having presented a sufficient number of high grades and meeting all other requirements of the Phoenix chapter.

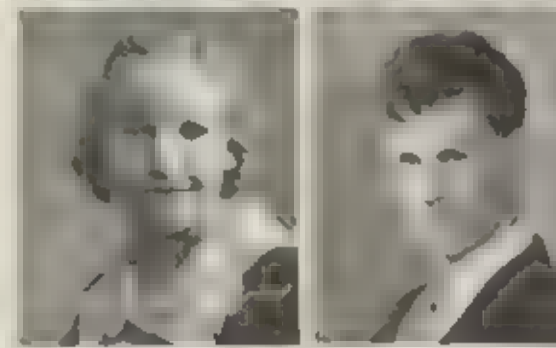

Initiation of new members this year consisted of each neophyte's being compelled to sell 25 Coyote Journals and make a report on 40 pages in books of Journalistic interest.

To the reader, this, the 1934 Phoenixian naturally seems somewhat radical in design. Hence, elucidation is appropriate.

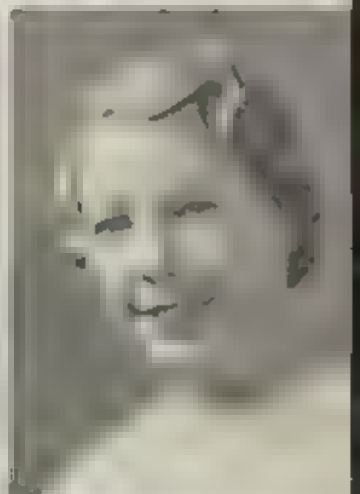

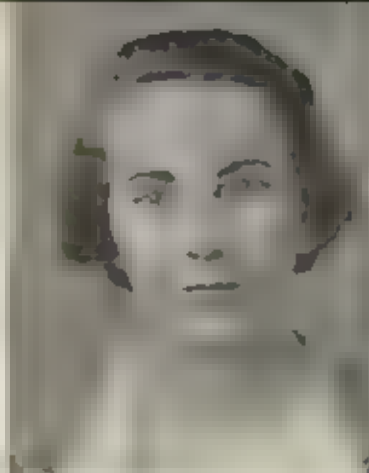

In the 24 preceeding Phoenixians, practically all theme material was exhausted, not only partially but completely. This year, of course, there arose the vibrant question of just what the 1934 staff was going to do for the traditional year book—another la reine de nation

True, the Phoenixian had five years ago published a "modern" book, but the National contests had judged it "ahead of its time" The thought of publishing a truly distinctive "modern" book, however, had never left the field of possibility This year, there has been a National Recovery Program in effect, a National Recovery Program that would have a nation go back to work Quite naturally the return of a nation to work and modernism link harmoniously But, to have a school at work. That was different. The lines in students' faces bear mute testimonial, while their mouths bear not so mute testimonial, that they have always been at work.

It was decided, then, that The School At Work would be the theme of the 1934 book. Just how to go about it was an unsolved mystery. The disastrous defeat of modernism some five years ago still cast a shadow on the plans. So this new one must be different It must be an attempt to do the impossible—pleasing the Student Body and at the same time be ready to undergo the careful scrutiny of national contest judges. Then too, it couldn't copy other modern annuals of last year.

The staff went into a huddle with the publications adviser, Mr. Edward H. Redford, and out of their comments came the ideas of running group pictures vertically, of the sport page layouts, of all pictures "bleeding," and even a different type of write-up.

During the three months that followed, all the group pictures were taken—taken in front of a large gray curtain and carefully cut, mounted, and engraved. But the copy; the copy was slow. Every possible type of write-up was tried and finally a feature, or semi-feature form, was adopted. The object being to write on facts heretofore unused, or only partially touched, by preceding Phoenicians.

An efficient art staff did its share of the work for the book in creating and developing a new type of lettering and also designing all of the excellent art work. It was only under the competent supervision of Mrs. Cordelia M. Perkins that all of this excellent work could be accomplished.

Now the book is completed, and it is the sincerest hope of the staff of the 1934 Phoenician that a great school, such as Phoenix High, will consider the book the greatest in its history.

The Coyote Journal finished its eighteenth season of publication this spring, and on the black side of the ledger too.

There were times when the Journal seriously considered cutting its size from seven columns to five columns. And, of course, it was all due to lack of advertising revenue during the first semester. The second semester is always better than the first because the majority of major dramatic events come at this time, and feature ad layouts for these events net a pretty profit.

But the first semester; that was the bane of the paper's existence, and it was at this time that the Journal made a valiant fight against disaster. The advent of the new semester not only brought the vision of profit, but it also lessened the strain on the distracted Journal staff. The routine suddenly became easier—and steadier.

From the time of the deadline on Tuesday afternoon to page proof on Thursday evening and the printed paper on Friday, a steady, systemized procedure is followed. It is probably this smooth, well-regulated routine that gives the Journal its same regular style and distinctive make-up. The Coyote Journal has won innumerable "All American" ratings and recently added to its laurels by winning an "International" rating.

The Coyote Journal this year tried several changes in make-up, such as outside cuts, front page cartoons run at the bottom of the page, and many other interesting innovations. Even front page advertising was used in an attempt to get new ideas started. These ads were, of course, for the paper, as one of the duties of a newspaper is to advertise itself.

The Feature Department provided the "punch" for the paper. And, as no school paper is actually complete without a good feature page, new ideas were used on this page in the interest of greater school-wide appreciation of the paper. The most unique feature used by this department was the "Experience Interview." In getting these interviews, the reporter, in place of making innumerable interrogations, engaged in the work of the person interviewed. For example, if a teacher was to be approached, instead of asking the usual string of questions, the interviewer taught the teacher's class; likewise he played the tennis champ, took a typing speed test, and even played on the Girls' Volleyball team.

Journal Ad Staff

The Printed Word

And now we come to the newspaper "pawns", the reporters and ad solicitors. How vital they are in the organization of a newspaper, yet how little credit they get at times.

There is a way, however, to handle these reporters, and that method is used to an efficient degree in the Coyote Journal. It is the inevitable point system, featuring the still more inevitable "bonus for good work and deductions of late stuff" policy. But it does work.

The second semester of this year found the deduction part of the policy minimized, and mainly because of a recommendation system used in selecting reporters. For, in a recent ruling of the Publications Department, only students with exceptional grades and recommendations from their English teachers are allowed to take Journalism in order to become reporters. Ad solicitors are exempt from this regulation.

So it is, with 32 reporters and 15 ad solicitors, that the make-up of the Journal's personnel is so complete and competent that the deduction part of the sacred policy finds but little use.

Masque of the Yellow Moon

The Masque of the Yellow Moon is undoubtedly the largest annual pageant presented in this country by a high school, and it is now gaining national recognition.

The Masque this year was entitled Two Sons West and depicted the life of the early prospectors. "Two Sons" Simpson, the hero of the dramatic part of the pageant, gained his queer pseudonym from his continual inferences that much precious metal lay just "two sons West" of where he was at the time.

By luck, the old prospector strikes a rich vein which comes to be known as Bullion Peak. He sells out for $60,000, takes the money, and starts a restaurant. His wife hears of his strike and joins him, and as she immediately takes things in her own hands, Simpson leaves. Complications then set in, but the outcome is highly amusing as well as spectacular.

The second part of the Pageant takes place in the court of the Queen of the Masque of the Yellow Moon. Over two thousand girls take part in the many beautiful dances, and the gorgeous costuming arranged before a gigantic 300 foot set has brought this spectacular pageant into national prominence.

Much credit for the success of the Masque is due to Mrs. Cordelia M. Perkins of the Phoenix High Art Department, whose able art direction has caused countless thousands to thrill at the stupendous beauty of the pageant.

The play dealt with the playboy, Mr. Temple, whose nightly activities were simply scandalous, and with Mrs. Temple, who wearied greatly of her husband's nocturnal carousings. Mrs. Temple spent much of her time trying to catch her gamboling spouse red-handed.

She avails herself of an unusual opportunity, but John Temple's prowess at alibis leads to practically insurmountable domestic entanglements. In the middle of the last act, however, these complications are superhumanly solved to the benefit of all the cast.

Best scene: when the characters, Mrs. Temple, Mrs. Brown, and Mrs. Fuller, meet with apparently everything in the world to discuss but find themselves speechless. This was probably the first time in man's history when his womankind was verbally incapable of meeting a situation.

The play concerns the aristocratic family of Dangerfield whose name is significant of their temperament. The father, family sire and lord high mogul of the Virginia aristocracy of Dangerfield, is touring Europe and is in need of an operation

His blue-blooded off-springs in America find the family purse in sore need of inflation, so in order to defray the cost of the operation they rent the house to a Northern family. The new tenants demand white servants, but these not being plentiful in Old Virginia, the Dangerfield children decide to take the job

Naturally, having lived in luxury all of their lives, they are not used to being ordered around but get pretty bossy themselves. Soon they are all discharged except Jane Ellen, who takes the cake, all the Northern family's hearts, and swipes the show in general

Les Follies

From the opening chorus of Two Buck Tim until the finale, the Girls' League annual vaudeville, Les Follies, with the featured theme of Lucky People, was an overwhelming success. Its presentation on the nights of November 24 and 25 marked one of the outstanding dramatic successes of the year.

Elinor Brown and Catherine Forbes, as masters of ceremonies, were assisted by Jean Powers, who carried away more than her share of the laurels by her splendid comic characterizations. The ceremonial ring-masters engaged in a continuous verbal combat as to who would have the privilege of introducing the next number and were invariably disturbed by the pestiferous Jean Powers.

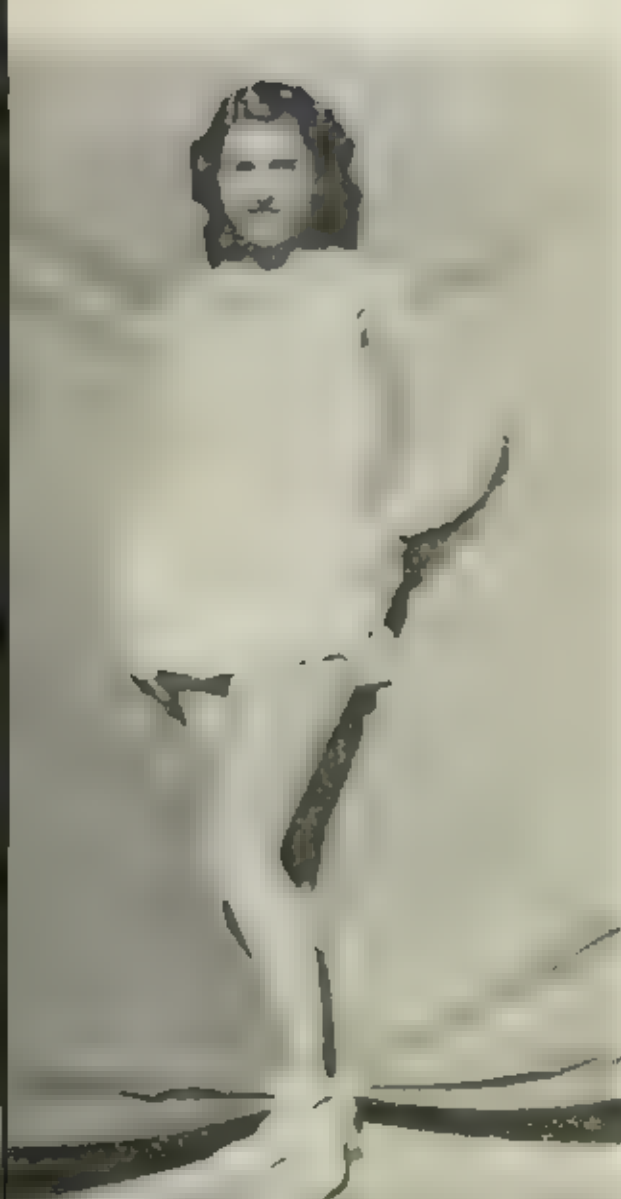

Probably one of the best liked musical numbers of the show was a vocal interpretation of the Shadow Waltz by Audrey Lefmann, Thelma Spielman, and Eloise Koontz.

Lucy, The Farmer's Daughter, a rural skit centered around the proverbial mortgage and the influence of the city slicker over the country gal, was received enthusiastically by the audience.

Several curtain acts were given, but probably the best liked of all was a skit entitled Pie in which Mae West was portrayed.

A musical extravaganza called the Cauldron featured dances of many foreign countries, the most outstanding of which was a military tap by Jean Cooley symbolizing the spirit of modern America.

The finale was Victor Herbert's Italian Street Song. The Girls' Advanced Glee Club, assisted by the Girls' Sextette, carried the chorus, and vocal solos were taken by Edith Silva and Thelma Spielman, with a violin solo by Lucia Stevenson.

Mor Follies

Flying hairy legs, undulating male tummies, masculine babes faking frail femininity, and sotto voicing Tarzans mingling in a galaxy of masculine charms—that's the Mor Follies.

Every year the Boys' Federation of Phoenix Union High School manages to get this show smuggled by the censors, and every year they pack in larger and larger audiences. For the past two years, the poor old Phoenix High Auditorium, which has a seating capacity of 2200 persons, has been packed to overflowing on both nights of this presentation, and people are turned away by the score. In fact, offers for the show from downtown theaters have been flattering during the past two years.

Not only does the Mor Follies bring the largest audiences ever to attend school functions, but it also amasses about six or seven hundred dollars each year.

In making the boys look girly-girly, no factor is overlooked. Over sixteen hundred dollars worth of wigs are rented for the occasion, while the cosmetic industry feels a general boom the world over.

The dances were intricate in design, varied in interpretation, but muffed in unison. Even at that, every one agreed that they did better than the girls, or just as well—anyway, almost as well.

This year Brit Burns was Master of Ceremonies while the petite little Ed Kerr was the nuisance assistant. Mae West and the three little pigs were there too, but by necessity they were not paired together. The show in general is now the accepted piece de resistance of the year.

Forensic League

The Public Speaking Department's debate and oratory divisions play a really important part in the make-up of the school, both educationally and culturally.

This year, however, only one debate was held—that being with Bakersfield, California. Ed Kerr and Katherine Greenawalt journeyed to the coast city to represent Phoenix High, and although they lost to the California school they have the honor of being the only interscholastic debaters this year.

Every year the Phoenix Rotary Club sponsors a Public Discussion Contest on some question vitally important to the school, and all students interested in public speaking work have this excellent opportunity to compete for cash prizes. This year, about one thousand students entered the contest, and a Junior, Anatha Dixon, emerged winner.

Each spring, the Arizona Republic, a Phoenix newspaper, sponsors a statewide Constitutional Oratorical Contest, and here again students are offered an excellent opportunity to compete for prizes.

The National Forensic League's Phoenix Chapter honors all students who have represented the school in contests and who have made a required number of points. When members have attained the advanced degrees of Honor, Distinction, and Excellence they are rewarded with jewels to be added to their club pin.

Other contests of interest also take place during the school year. The best known of these is the Valley Declamation Contest which is generally held at the first of the new year. A contest is also held in the fall for various kinds of readings.

The Masque and Bauble Club has been formed for those students interested in dramatics. Certain requirements exist, however, as all members in the club must have first taken a part in some play or must have a grade of Z or better in Dramatics. An exception to this rule is with students who take Expression and who have sufficiently high grades to warrant their application for club membership.

Meetings of the club are held every other week, one being a business meeting and the other a social.

High School Band

Living up to its standard of being one of the finest bands in the state, marching or in concert, Phoenix High's R.O.T.C. musical aggregation strikes up a real patriotic Coyote spirit when it marches down the field.

At football games it exemplifies Phoenix' traditional fighting spirit by the splendid pep songs and marches, and in performances at the halves their unusual marching ability never fails to bring applause.

The band has been an indispensable factor in the make-up of local parades for many years and is generally selected to head these parades. The Armistice Day celebration trek and the Memorial Day honor march are probably the most famous of the parades in which the band participates.

Serving the school more locally, the band furnishes the music for the local R.O.T.C. inspections held every Monday and also the Federal inspection held in March.

The entire school always comes in contact with the band at assemblies. For at the great pep assemblies held before outstanding athletic events, the band is on hand to do its share in getting the student body in the proper temperament for victory.

For the first time in the history of Phoenix Union High School the Advanced Glee Clubs have combined their talents for mass singing. This splendid mixed chorus of 125 members has this year abolished the traditional quartettes and sextettes and has chosen to do practically all its work in unison.

This year's novel plan has not only worked to the Glee Clubs' advantage by presenting a greater scope of singing, but it has also made the Glee Clubs more popular with the students.

This year, acting upon the suggestion of Supt. E. W. Montgomery, the Phoenix Union High School Oratorio Society was formed. Under the sponsorship of this organization the finest and most outstanding event of the year was presented—that of Mendelssohn's great oratorio, Elijah, on March 23 and 24.

To aid in presenting this stupendous spectacle professional soloists were engaged—one coming from Los Angeles. Needless to say, the oratorio was an unprecedented success, judging from the favorable public reception. The school's Mixed Chorus did more than admirably support the professional singers in their parts—it gained vast knowledge of operatic singing, something often denied the high school singer.

Other Musical Organizations

In their striking uniforms of red and white, Phoenix High's own Girls' Band makes an imposing sight on any occasion. With their perfect marching technique they are at their height when performing in front of thousands at football games.

This organization enjoys the singular privilege of being one of the first girls' bands to be formed in a co educational high school in this country. The band is very popular among the students of the school and plays at several assemblies throughout the school year.

But for all school dramatic events a different type of music is needed and for this music the school orchestra is called upon. This organization, under the direction of Mr. A. R. Etzweiler, has won much applause from both students and Phoenix citizens.

Slightly less known than the Advanced Glee Clubs, but not without talent, are the minor Glee Clubs. They make up their deficit in prominence, however, with more public appearances than the Advanced Clubs.

Certain clubs in the minor groups have made several radio appearances this year. Others have entertained members of the Parent Teachers' Association at their meetings. When members of America's three major religious sects were making their nationally famous "Good Will" tour recently, one of the minor Glee Clubs was chosen to complete their programs here.

Girls' Rifle Club

There is probably a no more inspiring sight on the Phoenix Union High School campus than the R. O. T. C. unit on parade. The military course is one of the most popular with the boys at school for this reason and because of the great physical benefits derived from military training.

Besides the regular military drill, practical instruction is also given in machine gun drill, wall scaling, marksmanship, firing data, map reading, sanitation, elementary topography, and first aid.

The inspections held every Monday morning offer a spirit of competition, as prizes are awarded winning students at the end of the year. A Federal inspection was held this year in March.

The Military Department has its own social organization in the form of the R O T C Club which was established for the purpose of bringing together all students interested in military affairs.

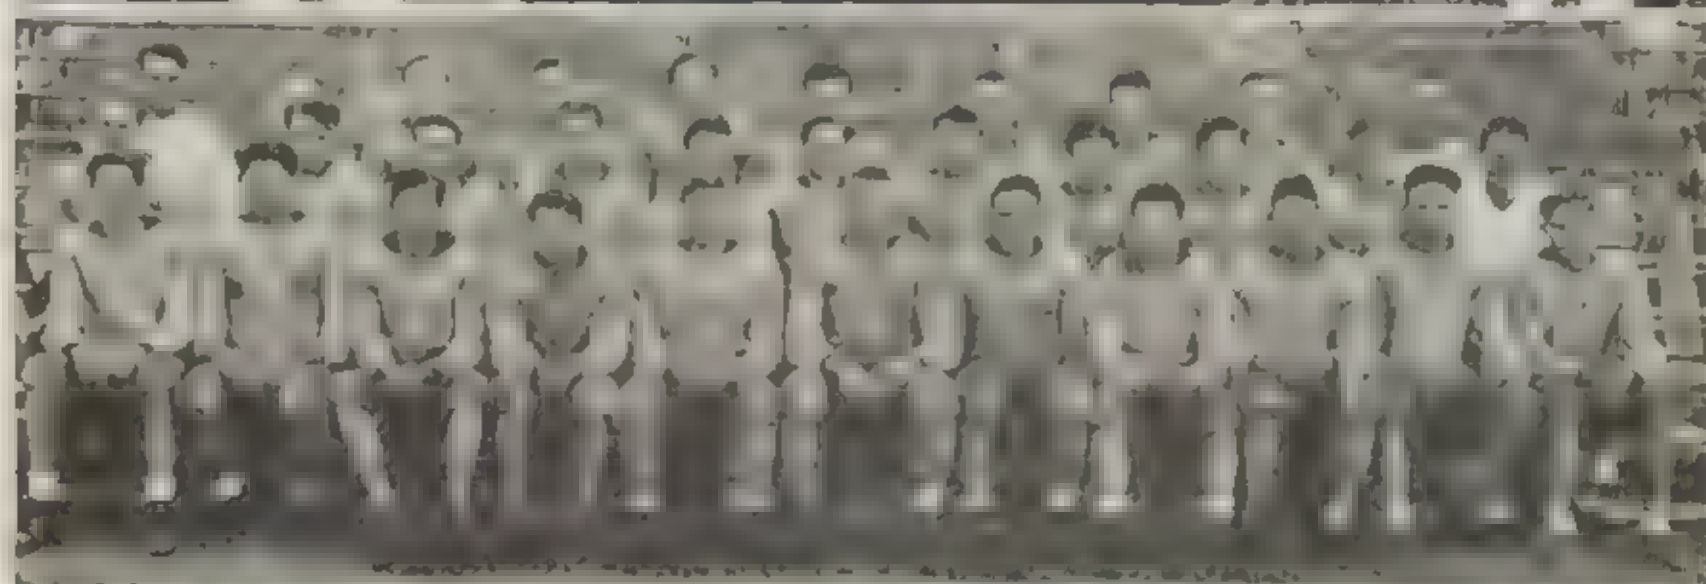

For boys interested in marksmanship, in conjunction with the regular military course, there is the Boys' Rifle Club. This club officially represents the school in all interscholastic shooting matches.

A similar organization for girls is the Girls' Rifle Club. This organization is exceedingly popular with the girls, and the club engages in shooting contests with the Boys' Club.

Phoenix 6 - Yuma 6

Followers of the Black and Red football machine witnessed what might be termed "the beginning of the end" of the Coyote football season when they saw the local squad barely escape defeat at the hands of a hard fighting Yuma eleven.

Displaying flashes of brilliant football now and then, the Phoenix squad looked as impressive as any team could look but only to spoil it all by using their "fumble play" which became increasingly famous as the season progressed

Experimenting with one combination and then another, Coach "Robby" Robinson failed to unearth one that could be relied upon as a sure ground gainer. A backfield composed of L. B. Nelson, Walter Conley, Wesley Arnold, and Benson Alexander looked best for the home club

Phillips, sensational All-State fullback, was outstanding man for the visitors.

Phoenix 6 – Indians 7

Breaking an old football tradition, the Coyotes and Phoenix Indian School switched their annual Turkey Day game to November 4. Moving the game to this date seemed to jinx the Coyotes, as it was the first tussle they had lost to the Redman since 1928.

When Captain Vance and "Big Chief Chappy" Chapman met in the middle of the gridiron to smoke the time honored pipe of peace, clouds of smoke rolled over the field to mingle with the suffocating dust of the Indians' prairie field. Evidently the haze did not clear in time for the pale face warriors to see their way to victory.

From the spectators' point of view the game was a hard fought scrap, but more exacting observation showed the Coyotes were not in top form or they would have taken the government school.

Power plays featured the Indian attack, with Chapman carrying the ball.

Phoenix 0 — Mesa 13

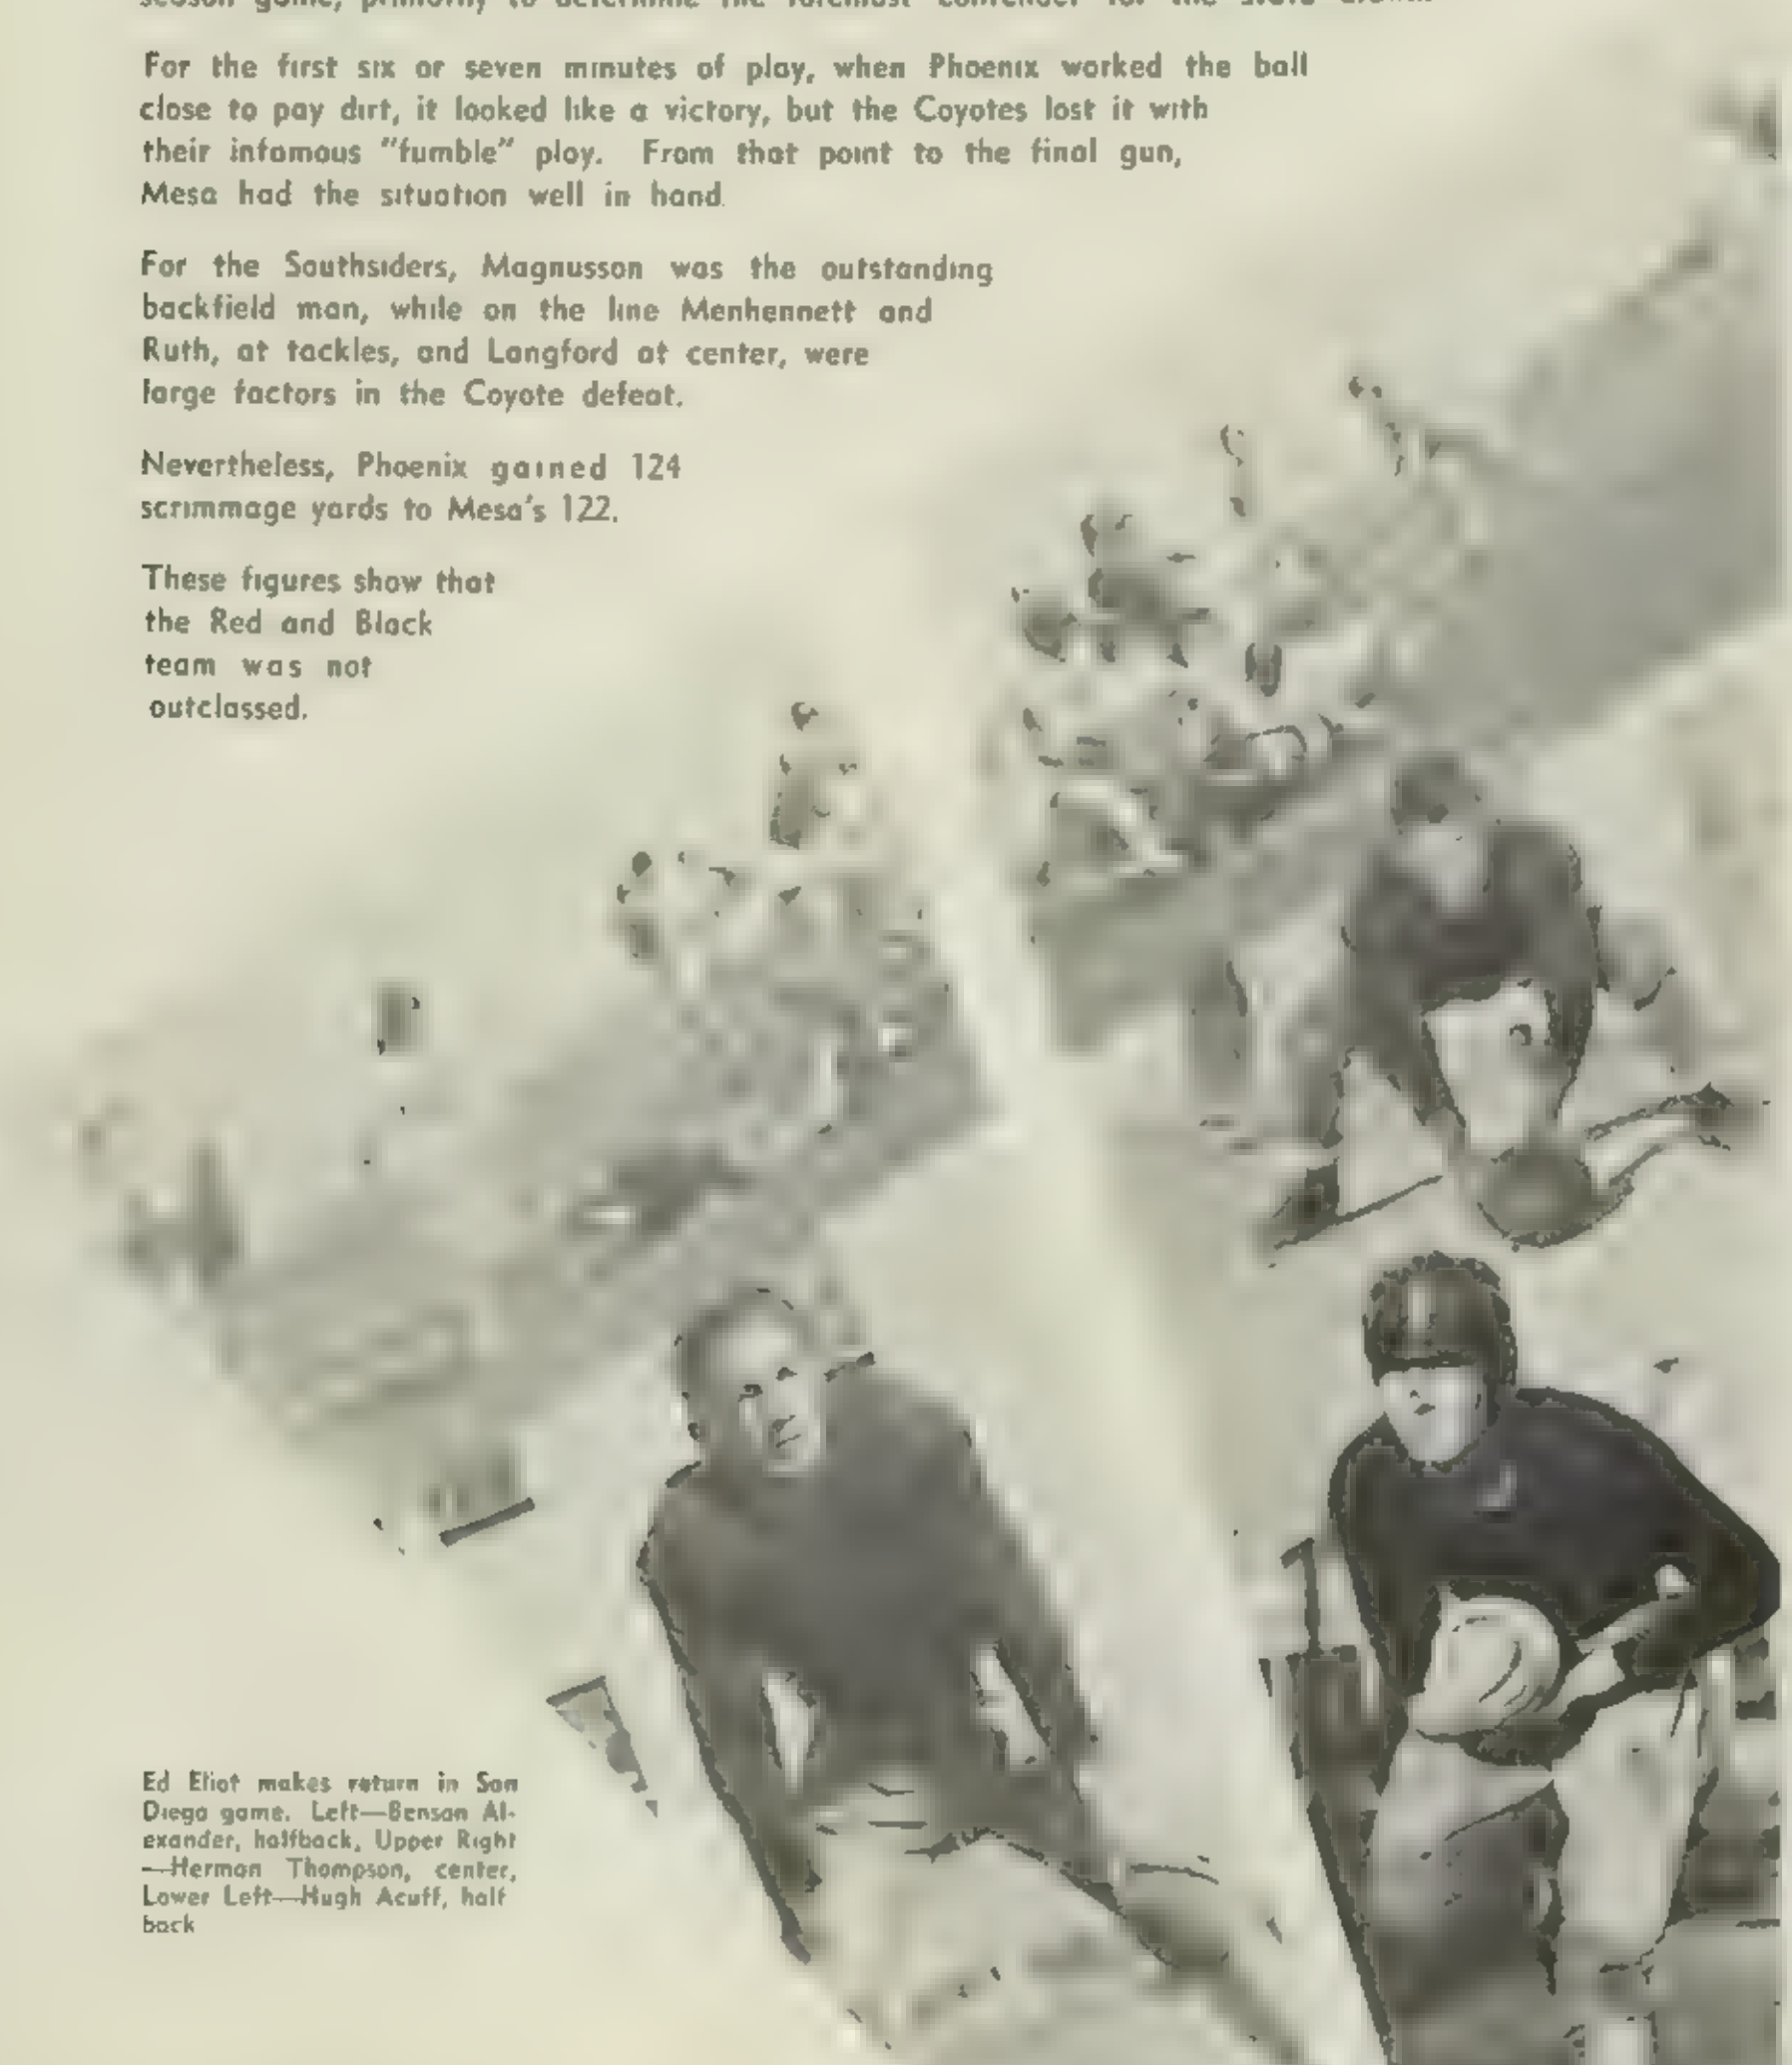

After many trying years Mesa succeeded in her efforts to down the Coyotes, doing so by a 13 0 score. The Jackrabbits took advantage of Phoenix' off year and scheduled a late season game, primarily to determine the foremost contender for the state crown.

For the first six or seven minutes of play, when Phoenix worked the ball close to pay dirt, it looked like a victory, but the Coyotes lost it with their infamous "fumble" ploy. From that point to the final gun, Mesa had the situation well in hand.

For the Southsiders, Magnusson was the outstanding backfield man, while on the line Menhennett and Ruth, at tackles, and Longford at center, were large factors in the Coyote defeat.

Nevertheless, Phoenix gained 124 scrimmage yards to Mesa's 122.

These figures show that the Red and Black team was not outclassed.

Phoenix 6 — Tempe Frosh 25

Literally biting their way to a 25-6 victory, a heavy but fast Tempe Bullpup eleven found little trouble in breaking through the Coyote line for long gains.

Phoenix alumni furnished four huskies to the Tempe squad which proved a Coyote nemesis—these players being Guthrie, Kajikawa, Hart, and Neece

With Hooten and Kajikawa carrying the ball, it was just a matter of how many yards the Coyote line would yield to these shifty ball toters.

Coach Robinson substituted quite frequently with lower classmen in hopes that he might unearth some promising material for next season.

Vance, star Coyote gridster, kept the score from going completely out of sight by figuring in more tackles than any other man on the Stadium field.

Phoenix 0 — El Paso 0

Elsewhere over the nation Armistice day was observed, but on the Stadium field there was war, grim war, with all its horrors. In this game the Coyotes were out to make their last stand for the Southwestern Championship.

Because of the importance of the game one would have expected a good hard fought thriller, but in reality the playing was slow, and the ball was in mid-field the majority of the time.

The most exciting moment of the contest was when the Tiger squad had the ball on Phoenix' 20-yard line and attempted a place kick—the very same play that had defeated Tucson the previous week-end—but only to have the ball fall short for the much needed points. Only once could Phoenix reach the El Paso 10 yard line. This tussle should have ended Phoenix' season, for it was the last good game they played.

Phoenix 2 — San Diego 20

Getting all the breaks, the San Diego Hilltoppers were able to run up a safe lead in the first half before the Phoenixians could find their footing on foreign soil.

The Coyotes threw a surprise into the dopesters when they managed to hold the powerful Hilltoppers to a three touchdown margin. Last year, on their home field, they had lost to the tune of 30-6.

The home club showed a lot more fight and spirit than in the previous game. After the first half, when the Coyotes were able to get the Pacific Coast fog out of their eyes, they started a drive only to be stopped within a few yards of the goal. San Diego immediately tried to kick out of danger, but Phoenix blocked the punt for a safety, which gave them their two points.

Phoenix 6 – Tucson 0

The last 30 seconds of play so completely overshadowed the rest of the Tucson game that the first 47½ minutes are not worth mentioning.

Thirty seconds to go, and Phoenix recovered a Tucson fumble on the Badger's 30-yard strip. Then came the ending of endings. A pass was the only possible or sensible play any team could use with such a short time to play. Knowing this, the Tucson backs were playing wide.

After receiving the ball from center, Nelson faded back to the 40-yard line and passed, the white pigskin soaring far into the end zone. Down the field Wesley Arnold, Phoenix halfback, with two Badger players on him, leaped high into the air, snagged the spiraling ball, and gave the game a traditional movie ending

This game gave Phoenix her one opportunity during the season to celebrate.

Phoenix 35 — Las Cruces 0

Looking like Coyote teams of old, the Phoenixians displayed a smooth running type of football that had the Las Cruces team completely baffled throughout the game

Playing on even terms with the Bulldog eleven during the first three periods, the Coyotes opened up in the final stanza with end runs, reverses, off-tackle plays, and finally took to the air in the last few seconds of play to run their total to 35.

Making five out of six place kicks, L. B. Nelson, Phoenix quarterback, turned in the finest performance of this type in years. Even the 1930 wonder team relied upon power plays for their extra points.

This game showed the Coyote rosters what their team really was capable of doing when in top form, but they were seldom to see this fast pace again during the season.

Phoenix 0 — University of Arizona Frosh 14

Playing one of the best defensive games seen by local fans in many a moon, the Black and Red aggregation held an aggressive University of Arizona Frosh team to two touch downs.

The Wildkittens, largely composed of former All-State gridsters, were led by Knox of Chandler and were able to keep the pigskin well under the shadow of the Coyote goal posts most of the game.

The Phoenix squad looked in better form than in any previous showing this year, and the offense worked with clock-like precision. Captain Vance, All-State tackle, made himself outstanding by figuring prominently in all phases of the game.

The Frosh line-up was studded with former Coyote stars—Lee Lowery, Hugh Suggs, and John Harrel—all instrumental in this Phoenix defeat.

Phoenix 0 — Flagstaff Frosh 27

Concluding their gridiron wars for the 1933-34 season, the Coyotes fell easy prey to the N A T C Freshmen by a 27-0 count. The more experienced Frosh players combined with the weather to cause the overwhelming Coyote defeat. Due to a previous two day downpour the field was a sloppy sea of water.

The muddy field added extra thrills which would have been missing if the field had been dry. The ball was fumbled and re-fumbled to make the game one grand comedy for the spectators.

So ended one of the most fatal seasons ever completed by a Red and Black machine. Only once during the entire season did they reach top form—in the Tucson game.

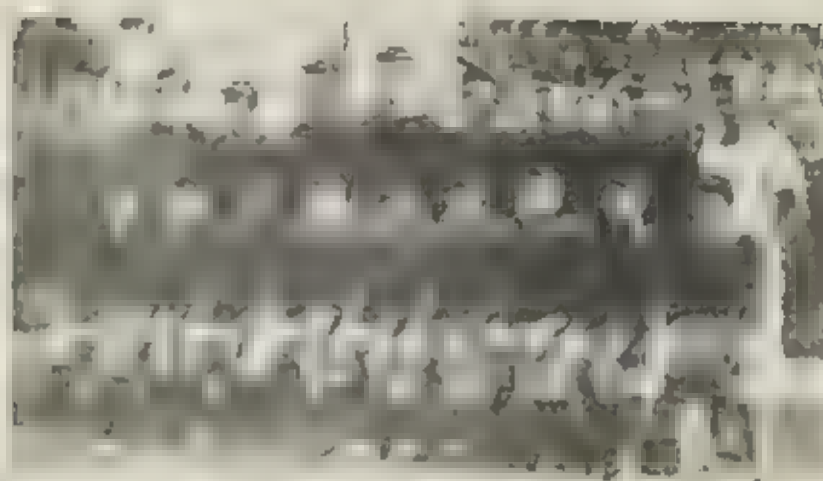

Captain Virgil Vance received the Goldberg trophy for outstanding playing, and, with Bill Sutton, was placed on the All-State team.

Non-Conference Games

Tackling Albuquerque as its first non conference foe, El Coyote found a classy Bulldog team no easy prey when they managed to split a two game series. The Phoenix court men took the first encounter by a lone marker -the score being 23-22. The second night's play found the Albuquerque five exceptionally adept at hitting the basket, and they downed the Coyote team by a 26-20 count.

Journeying to El Paso for their next tilt, the Red and Black cagers stopped off at Las Cruces to take a breather from the New Mexico team to the tune of 20-11. Continuing to El Paso, Phoenix basketeers found a Tiger squad a few points better each night and dropped both games of the series—the scores being 19-15 and 19-18.

These intra-state tussles proved the hardest and most hotly contested games on this year's Coyote schedule.

State Tournament

Tying with Peoria for the West Central championship, Phoenix received an invitation as one of the three district teams to take part in the state tournament at Tucson

Pre tournament predictions were that the Coyotes would go far as contenders for the state crown, but these prophecies went by the board when an under-rated team from Globe took the Phoenix club by a 33-31 score in the most exciting game of the state contest

Entering the consolation tournament the Coyotes found the competition quite easy, disposing of Prescott, Benson, and Clifton to emerge as winners. Incidentally, Phoenix was the only club to bring any laurels to the valley. Mesa, a tournament favorite, was a victim of Tucson in a second round game.

Summary Of Season

Failing to fulfill early season expectations, the Coyotes finished a mediocre basketball season by taking 21 out of 30 games.

Winning this large majority of games would ordinarily result in a successful year, but this was not the case, for the Red and Black cagers failed to come through in the important contests. These critical defeats might be contributed to the loss of "Bebe" Twitchell, All State guard, who was kept out of the crucial games by an injured ankle.

The feature game of the Coyote's schedule was with her old rival, Mesa. The game was played in the local gym, with the Jackrabbits taking a 23-20 decision over the Phoenix hoopsters, even though the Coyotes had led 17-9 at the end of the third quarter.

Phoenix 69 – Phoenix Indian School 53

Winning its first dual meet by a small margin, the Coyote track team appeared as a well balanced squad, with the exception of the mile and javelin events, which the Indians took with ease. Chapman stepped out in the 100 yard run in the excellent time of 10 seconds flat, to emerge as winner over L. B. Nelson, Phoenix entry. Nelson came back to even things up when he won the 220 yard event.

Phx. 6 4½ – Tempe Frosh 23½ – Ind. 34

Practically doubling the points of her two competitors, the Red and Black speedsters proved their ability as outstanding performers when they were able to collect eight first places and numerous seconds and thirds.

Walter Kenyon was in top form and placed first in his three favorite events, taking the high and low hurdles and the high jump.

Phoenix 79 — Mesa 37

Stepping out of her class to defeat Mesa in the third dual meet staged by the two schools, the Phoenixians collected 12 firsts and tied for a thirteenth, the visitors winning only a single first.

This meet proved to be just a good workout for the Coyotes, as they won almost every event in easy fashion. The Southsiders were determined to take at least one event and did so when their star distance runner reeled off the mile in the excellent time of 4.50.

Walter Kenyon, number one hurdler and high jumper for Phoenix, failed to collect his usual three first places, due to the fact that the Mesans had a 5 ft. 8 in. high jumper who was capable of jumping 5 ft. 10½ in., a height that tied Kenyon. This mark bettered the Greenway mark by one-half inch. This was Phoenix' first major sport victory over Mesa this year.

Phoenix 66 – Tucson 56

Training their guns on the Greenway meet, the Coyote track men held their final dual contest with the Tucson Badgers in a night track meet on the Stadium Field.

The meet was a nip and tuck affair throughout, until Francis Shaugnessy, Phoenix star middle distance man, took the 880 yard run in one of the most spectacular finishes ever witnessed under the local flood lights, when he was able to nose out Benz, Tucson runner, by inches, in the record breaking time of 2:06.

Tom DeKellis and Jim Parker, the Coyote entries in the pole vault, proved their worth when they tied for first honors in this event. The height cleared was 11 ft. 7¼ in., an elevation seldom reached by Arizona vaulters. Walter Kenyon also contributed a record breaking performance by leaping 5 ft. 11 in. to win the high jump.

Greenway Meet

Totaling $47\frac{3}{4}$ points, Phoenix won the Ninth Annual Greenway Field Day from Tucson, her nearest competitor, who amassed 29 points.

The meet was one thrill after another as each event was extremely close. The first record to fall was the pole vault, which was formerly held by Martin of Flagstaff, who set it at a height of 11 feet $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches in 1930. This elevation was bettered by Tommy De Kellis, Coyote vaulter, who cleared an altitude of 11 feet 10 inches—a height that should stand for some time.

Chapman of the Indian School set the second record breaking performance in the broad jump when he leaped 22 feet 2 inches, to better the old record of 21 feet 4 inches. Standing at approximately 5 feet 6 inches, Eaves of Mesa, contributed the third mark by high jumping 5 feet $10\frac{7}{8}$ inches.

Summary of Season

With only the state meet left before them, the Coyote trackmen had thus far completed an undefeated season.

Due to the fact that this book went to press before the State contest took place, we are forced to omit the write up on this meet. But there is little doubt as to the outcome, for with a season unblemished by a single defeat, Coach Robinson's aggregation will undoubtedly complete a victorious season.

For the past eight years Coach Robinson's track teams have shown their supremacy in this sport by winning every Greenway Field Day, and this year's squad was no exception when they made it the ninth consecutive victory, an unparalleled record.

High point man in most of this year's meets was Walter Kenyon.

Summary of Season

Up to the time this book went to press the Coyote baseball team had won all games and from all indications they would take their final encounter with the Glendale Cardinals, a game played on their home diamond.

This game was expected to be the high light of the baseball season, for both teams are rated championship clubs. The Glendale season was marred by a defeat administered to them in their first game by Buckeye who did the trick by a 9-4 score. The Cardinals were far from letting this defeat ruin their year's play and returned to diamond play to take four straight games, a record which puts them in second standing.

Coch McComb was highly pleased with the showing of this year's club, but is a bit leary of next year's squad. A last minute bulletin as this book goes to press shows that Phoenix defeated Glendale by a 1-0 count.

Phoenix 10 – Phoenix Indian School 1

Opening their 1934 baseball season with an impressive 10 1 victory over the Phoenix Indian School, the Coyotes looked as though they would duplicate last year's record of being undefeated in high school circles.

The team as a whole worked with perfect coordination, and without a mis-play throughout the entire game. The infield—composed of Flippen at third base; Slagle, short stop; Seaborn, second base; and Canning, first base—turned in some excellent fielding for their Alma Mater.

Phoenix 17 – Peoria 0

Going on a hitting spree, the Coyote nine made a track meet out of the Panther game. Having an "on" night the Phoenix batsmen just couldn't miss and drove the ball into all corners of the field for extra base hits. Peoria had the game colled at the end of the fifth inning.

Phoenix 5 - Tolleson 0

"Bebe" Twitchell, allowing but one hit, gave Phoenix little difficulty in disposing of the Wolverines, to make the third straight victory for the Coyotes.

The scoring of three runs in the first inning put the Phoenix nine on easy street. Coach Fred Miller's Tolleson club was one of the strongest in years and proved this by holding the heavy hitting Coyote squad to five tallies.

Phoenix 16 - Buckeye 2

Meeting the Buckeye team on the Hawk field in what was doped to be a hard fought battle, the Red and Black aggregation showed high school baseball circles what they really could do when the bacon was at stake.

Hanley Slagle and Beecher Twitchell led the Phoenix attack with three hits apiece.

Phoenix 9 — Tucson 4

Traveling to the Old Pueblo for their only out of valley game, the Coyotes established themselves as an outstanding contender for the state baseball title by trimming a classy Tucson Badger squad by a 9-4 score.

With but two games left before them, the McComb coached squad had little trouble in making it another perfect season, for thus far they had failed to lose a single high school game in five starts. The previous season the Coyotes won 12 consecutive contests in as many starts, which made their victories total seventeen without a loss.

The game was never in doubt as the Phoenix team pounded two of the Badger's best hurlers for many base hits. Jim Johnson and James Canning were the big gunners for the Phoenixians when each managed to connect for a three base blow. Twitchell again pitched good ball to add to his string of victories.

Phoenix 6 — Tempe 1

Pitching his usual steady brand of ball, "Bebe" Twitchell found little trouble in holding the Tempe club to three scattered hits as his team mates collected nine from Gardiner, Tempe star left hander

Jimmy Johnson continued his onslaught on valley high school hurlers when he collected three hits out of four times at the plate. The game was not as one sided as expected, and Gardiner was the man who kept it from being so, for he had the Phoenix batsmen guessing throughout the seven innings with his left handed deliveries.

Collecting two runs in the initial inning the Coyote sluggers thought they had the game well in hand only to have this thought changed when Tempe registered one marker in their time at bat. But errors by the losers and timely hits by the Phoenixians made it the seventh straight win of the season

Yell Leaders

One of the most essential factors in good school spirit and winning athletic teams is the whole hearted yelling of the students. This year's cheering was very capably carried on under the direction of Charles "Chuck" Rawson, who was elected senior yell leader. His junior assistants, also elected, were Lawrence "Horny" Anderson, and Jay Stuckey.

The Howling Hundred, last year's cheer club, was reorganized into the Hollering Host for this year's athletic season. A special section in the stadium was reserved for this organization, and this group proved to be the main spring in all school yells. Besides helping with the student body cheering the club had its own individual yells under the leadership of Rowland Brink, their cheer leader.

The cheer leaders are most active when the football season is in progress.

Tennis

In order to select a school tennis team, Coach Ralph Fields opened the season by holding class tournaments.

These matches were conducted on the elimination basis to decide class winners. Jim Canning emerged winner of the Senior division, while in the Junior class Darrel Hudlow was crowned champ, and the Sophomore title went to Roy King. The Freshmen failed to finish their matches, and consequently a winner was not named.

The finals for the school championship saw Canning and Hudlow fighting it out for the title, with Hudlow taking it in two straight sets.

From showings made in the tournament, eight men were selected for the school team. These players represented the Red and Black in all intra-school matches.

Tennis

Because of the few matches played this year, the strength of the varsity tennis team was hard to ascertain so far as high school tennis competition was concerned.

Invading Globe in their only high school match, the Coyote racketeers found little difficulty in winning six out of the seven matches played. Before the year is over the Coyotes will tackle Globe again and possibly El Centro and Glendale High Schools of California.

Darrel Hudlow, the most promising racket wielder of the Phoenix tennis squad and number one ranking player, proved himself one of the best players in the state when he emerged victor in two Public Tennis Tournies. This is a feat that is not often accomplished by a high school junior.

Jim Canning did the unexpected and won the State Junior Men's title, his first major Championship.

Intramural Sports

This year, for the first time, lightweight intramural football teams were organized so smaller players could participate with boys of their own size and weight. In this division, the squad captained by Ernest Sauer defeated Junior Sanita's eleven for the title. Jack Christensen's team was crowned heavyweight champ when it downed Gilbert Curtis' club in the final play off.

Winning the school basketball championship for the second time, Mr. Ralph Field's senior group found little trouble in disposing of W. B. Simpson's sophomores by a score of 54-26 for the school banner.

Mr. Fred Goodwin's group climaxed the indoor baseball season by administering a sound drubbing to Mr. William B. Hill's nine, the final score being 14-8.

Mrs. Kathryn Munson's track squad emerged easy winners over Coach Caldwell's group.

Intramural Sports

Phoenix high school has one of the most highly organized systems of intramural sports in the southwest. This is made possible by the cooperation of faculty members and students.

These sports are primarily for those students interested in athletics and not capable of making the varsity teams. On the other hand, they offer a training place for underclassmen who have possibilities of making first teams.

The entire schedule for the different sports is run on a home room basis, with the exception of football in which teams are chosen at large.

Each home room is represented by a team in basketball, indoor baseball, and track.

The respective classes play a round-robin tournament in which the winners are determined.

These championship squads then vie for the school title.

Volleyball

After six weeks of practice the girls closed the volley ball season by playing a round robin tournament to decide the school championship. Under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Hetherington, the respective class teams were selected and the meet was well under way.

As in past years the Seniors played the Sophomores and the Juniors tangled with the Freshmen in the first round play, with both upper class teams emerging winners. The final contest saw the Seniors take two straight games to down the Juniors' hopes of becoming school champs.

When the tournament was completed an all-star team was chosen, the squad being selected by the players of the first teams and the coaches. There were nine members elected to this honorary squad. The Senior class was best represented, as they were able to place six players on this team.

Basketball and Swimming

With approximately 80 girls turning out for their class basketball teams, Coaches Elizabeth Jack, Ethel Fisher, and Ruth Hetherington found plenty of material from which to mould their teams.

Basketball was played on the same basis as volley ball, with an All-Star team picked in the same manner. The Seniors again proved their superiority by administering a sound licking to the Junior Class team

For those girls interested in swimming, the Swimming Club was organized this year. Meetings were held daily during the fall and spring at the Y. W. C. A.

Various events and games were held during the season, and one of the most interesting and exciting of the aquatic sports was water polo, in which all of the 40 entrants took part. Anita Cooper's team won first honors.

Tennis and Speedball

As in past years, Phoenix Union High School produced another winning girls' tennis team, a squad that has so far taken all matches played in high school competition.

Coached by Loretta Cooper, formerly Womens' State Tennis Champion, the team as a whole was very strong, and consequently the first three players were so evenly matched, a winner was hard to pick. Each girl seemed in better form in certain matches than did the others.

The first two girls on the squad and the order in which they played were Anita Cooper, runner up in State and Southwest Tennis Tournaments, and Elizabeth Rose, number two player, who won the Junior Womens' State Tennis Crown when she defeated her team mate, Anita Cooper, in close sets to annex the title. Third and fourth ranking players were Maxine Hudlow and Barbara Wilkinson, both of whom will be back next year.

Tumbling, Baseball, and Riding

An organization that is fast becoming popular with the girls is the El Kowajo club. This group, under the supervision of Miss Lorette Cooper, holds its meetings every other week at the Arizona Riding Stables.

Members of this club gave exhibitions of their riding ability when they performed between halves of important football games. They also took part in the Junior Chamber of Commerce Horse Show in which there were many southwest entries.

Major O. I. Holman coached the girls in military drills and other interesting exercises.

With 80 girls turning out for the tumbling squads, Ethel Fisher, coach, had little trouble in finding material for the various teams. These girls spend many long hours after school in learning intricate maneuvers.

Improving student literary taste is a very praiseworthy occupation, and for this reason the Phoenix Union High School English Department is to be congratulated upon its fine variety of courses in literature

Believing in the use of home products, the department uses as a junior English literature textbook one written by Miss Zula Stevens, a member of the English faculty.

But not only literature courses are given in this department. Adequate work is also offered in composition, creative writing, journalism, dramatics and public speaking. Oral English is better known to the students in the form of floor talks, an important part of all English courses.

To encourage students who have any literary talent, classes are conducted in creative writing and composition. The best writings which these classes produce are published every six weeks in a mimeographed booklet, Nuggets. This year Nuggets won second place in the Columbia Scholastic Press Association's contest.

The Phoenix Scribblers is an organization formed for those students who have shown an ability to write poetry or who are interested in the study of it.

The Coyote Puppeteers are those students who have had experience in the making and operating of puppets. Members of the club make their own puppets, stage settings, and even write their plays. This organization gives the students an entertaining hobby and also provides practice in creative writing.

After one has finally managed to ascend to the fourth floor of the Eighth Building and passed the guardian angels of the History Department—life size statues of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln—he seems to be living back in the days when Caesar and Napoleon were flinging their bonnets before the winds. Here the characters out of the past actually come to life.

Scenes which before had to be pictured in the mind are now put into form by the members of this department and their students. Using one of the most modern techniques developed for teaching, they re-enact historical events with accurate detail as to dress and setting, before a moving picture camera. In furthering the idea of visual instruction, the History Club cooperates with the classes in making historical pictures and in bringing educational films to the school for class use.

But not only ancient history is taught. International Relations, dealing with the newest policies and negotiations among countries of the world, is in the curricula. Southwest History is also offered as a substitute for Economics in some courses.

Civics is a required course for all seniors. In these classes tests are given which have been compiled by the State Board of Education. These tests are probably the reason why Civics is one of the most talked of subjects in Phoenix High.

The History Department has an excellent teaching staff and is the proud possessor of the only Ph.D. degree in the faculty.

Science Faculty

If you see someone running madly about the campus with a net on a long stick, don't doubt his mentality. He is just trying to catch various Odifera and Coleoptera (bugs to you) for his biology class. After the insects have been captured they are put to death with ether and then torn asunder to satisfy the student's lust for learning. Another sport in which the students take great pleasure is preparing a skeleton of some unfortunate animal. The most important part of this operation is the boiling down process where all of the meat is cooked until it falls from the bones. Such delicacies as the brain and heart are saved for future study.

All students are required to take at least one science, but many take a three and four year course because of the exceptional value and interest of science. Besides Physiography and Biology, Chemistry, Physics and General Science courses are offered. The students only make one complaint against this department—they say that the tests are too hard. This department is also noted for its fine scientific collections.

The Physiography Club, one of the most active organizations in the school, is under the supervision of the Science Department. Various field trips are taken during the year, the most important of which is the annual snow trip to the northern part of the state. The purpose of the club is to further interest in physiographic geology. Also under the direction of a science teacher is the Chess Club which was formed to give those students interested in chess a chance to improve their game.

The Art Department of Phoenix Union High School has not only gained fame locally but throughout the East for its art work. Several students have had work in the national traveling exhibit

Winning awards seems to be a habit with students enrolled in the department. Each year entries are placed in the National Scholastic contest and many individual awards are won by the Phoenix entrants. Various phases of art are studied such as wood blocking, oil painting, water coloring, tapestry designing, and sculpturing

Almost anywhere around the school various kinds of art work are in use. Posters are made for all campaigns such as elections, membership drives for clubs, and advertisements for dramatic events. Scenery and backgrounds are designed for the class plays, the follies, and the annual pageant.

Mrs. Cordelia Perkins, head of the department, and director of the Masque of the Yellow Moon, has charge of the art students who design all costumes which are used in the pageant.

All musical organizations are included in the Allied Arts group, but their activities are elaborated upon in another section of this book

Foreign Language Faculty

Living in a section of the United States where a large amount of Spanish is spoken, Phoenix High students realize its value to them and take advantage of the opportunity to learn Spanish in school. This fact probably accounts for the 37 classes which are conducted daily in that subject. Two years of Spanish are required before membership is allowed in Los Coyotes Espanoles, local Spanish club.

Projects form an important part of the Latin course. Each unit of work is climaxed by a project, such as a cross word puzzle worked in Latin or Roman characters carved in soap. Each year a contest is sponsored for the advanced Latin students. A test is given on Virgil and Cicero, the highest score winning the prize. The Virgil and Cicero SPQR Clubs hold meetings twice a month, during which they exchange programs and debates.

Legio Decima, the Sophomore Latin Club, originated a novel idea in the form of a Roman banquet. Roman ideas were carried out, such as reclining while eating and wearing togas.

Le Cercle Francais, the French organization, is for those students who have had two years of French. The club is really a benefit to the members because all meetings are conducted in French, and it gives them a chance to improve their speaking vocabulary.

Commercial Faculty

To the strains of Baby's Birthday Party, beginning typing students attain that perfect rhythm which is so necessary to a good typist. Perhaps that is why the Commercial Department has gained recognition throughout the school for its exceptional typewriting classes.

Students are realizing more and more the importance of typing, whether they are preparing for a business career or whether they are going to continue their education. Not only do the students want typing, but teachers recommend it because they prefer typewritten work in assignments.

The increased demand for Typing was partly the cause of the change in the schedule of periods which took place this year. The length of periods was increased from 45 to 50 minutes, and the requirement for a major credit in typing was changed from two periods to one period a day, thus allowing more students to take this work.

Various commercial classes are offered students, ranging from Bookkeeping and Accounting to Business Organization and Salesmanship.

One of the most important educational contests held during the school year is the Commercial Contest sponsored by the Commercial Club. Competition is very keen because any student enrolled in a commercial class may enter. Tryouts are held in the separate classes, and then the final is conducted under the supervision of the club members.

Making all courses as practicable as possible is the aim of the Mathematics department, and in doing this the department is following the plans of the National Council of Mathematics

For all general uses, Commercial Mathematics is the most practical course offered the students, for it covers principles which may be used in every day life, as calculating interest, figuring discounts, and other practical problems. Until recently Industrial and Commercial Mathematics were under the direction of their respective departments, but they have now been taken over by the Mathematics Department.

Advanced Arithmetic is a special course for those students who have difficulty in mastering mathematics. This subject is a combination of geometry, algebra, and ordinary arithmetic

After completing one year of algebra and plane geometry, any student is eligible for membership in the Mathematics Club. The club was organized to give the students a study of the history of mathematics. At the meetings speakers are obtained who are authorities on mathematics and students give reports on the various phases of the history and problems of the subject.

Home Economics, Library and Study Halls

During the unsettled periods of economic stress, one never knows whether it will be the man or the woman who will be called upon to run the home. Profiting by the experience of their parents, the boys of Phoenix High requested that a boys' class of Home Economics be organized. In asking for the course they explained that in case they had to keep house they would like to know something about it.

One of the main projects of the cooking classes is to give dinners, breakfasts, and teas. Evidently the students become quite proficient in the culinary art, for no faculty members have succumbed after attending one of the dinners.

Besides the Art Department, the clothing classes have more to do with the production of the Masque of the Yellow Moon than any other department. After the costumes have been designed in the art classes, patterns are made, and the costumes are cut and fitted for each of approximately two thousand students.

Study halls have lost their prestige in Phoenix Union High School. They have been practically eliminated except for those students who have low grades.

Being very important to the students, the library is open for use from 7:30 in the morning until 5 o'clock at night. As an extra-curricular subject, a course in library management is given to those students who are interested.

Industrial Arts Faculty

Starting in the wood shop, on a trip through the Industrial Arts Department, you see students constructing scale houses or making furniture for themselves or for various rooms in the school. All of these projects are built from plans and specifications drawn in the drafting room and there made into blue prints.

Besides furniture, other useful things are made; among them are boats and even an airplane that was taken out and flown. The motor in the plane was made by a student in the machine shop.

Next is the forge shop. Here students make wrought iron hinges and ornaments for the furniture made in the wood shop. Here too, metal is heated to make casts for the machine shop.

In the machine shop the cast is made and put on the lathe. Then with blue prints from the drafting room it is turned into useful machinery for one of the other departments. The student machinists also do all of the machine work for the auto shop which adjoins it. All students enrolled in the auto shop are allowed to fix their cars free except for the cost of parts. In the electric shop all minor electrical work for the school is done, and all forms of electricity are taught.

All these shops, in conjunction with the sheet metal shop, form not only a beneficial educational factor in the make-up of the school but also do useful work for the many departments of the school.

Agriculture, Military and Physical Education

Although there is not much connection between Physical Education and Agriculture, these two departments have the same department head and so they are combined in this section. The teaching staff for the two is entirely different with the exception of Coach R. R. Robinson, who teaches both Agriculture and Physical Education. Students may major in Agriculture, taking a full four year course, or they may take it as an elective. A new course started this year is Landscape Gardening which is open to both boys and girls.

Recognizing the value of Physical Education, the School Board has made it a required subject. Calisthenics play an important part in the daily schedule for boys although much attention is given to sports of all kinds.

The classes for girls are divided into two divisions, one group taking outside sports and the other taking aesthetic dancing. For those girls who are very much interested in sports, an after school class is conducted. Here the class teams are formed and tournaments are held.

As a vocational club, the Future Farmers of America plays an important part in the practical application of agriculture for boys, and projects ranging from the raising of radishes to pigs are carried on. Each year a cattle judging team represents the club at the state fair.

For the benefit of those students who major in athletics, various organizations have been formed to give them extra work in this field and also to enlarge their social activities.

For the boys the National Honor Athletic Society is the club in which membership is most desired and the hardest to attain. Besides being lettermen, the boys must have a scholarship average of 2 before they are eligible for membership. Those boys around school who are so proudly wearing black sweaters with red letters on them are the members of the Lettermen's Club.

As extra curricular athletics, the Hiking Club and the El Kawajo riding club are both very popular with the girls. Interesting features of El Kawajo are the moon light rides and the sunrise breakfast jaunts. The boys' Golf Club conducts tournaments for all students who are interested in golf.

The Girls Athletic Association is for all girls who are taking physical education. This club sponsors tournaments and meets. At the close of each period of sports, the G.A.A. gives an entertainment of some kind, one of which is the annual Mother-Daughter Banquet.

Requirements for the Girls' Letter club are much stiffer than those for the Lettermen's. The girls must have played on two all star teams, have 750 points, and pass three health tests. Sweaters for the club are white with red letters. Following in the footsteps of other clubs, the girls have a picnic once each semester.

Students, in a valiant attempt to get to their lockers during periods or break any other minor rules pertaining to conduct in the halls or on the grounds, are always confronted by the student guardians of the law, the Coyote Hall and Ground Squads and the Hostesses.

Each organization in the performing of its prescribed duties is so efficient as to bring forth a stream of protest from student would-be wrong-doers.

In the first line of defense is the Coyote Ground Squad, whose duties are to keep students off the lawns, guard street entrances to the campus, and keep order in general on the grounds.

Then in secondary position is the Coyote Hall Squad, custodians of the gates. Every building entrance is officially watched over by a member of this group, whose main duty it is to keep silence in the halls while classes are in session.

And lastly, the female of the species, the Hostesses. These girls are posted at very strategic positions through the halls to enforce locally the decree of the Coyote Club member at the door and also to keep roving students out of their lockers without permits.

The work of these two organizations is invaluable to the teachers of Phoenix Union High School, but sometimes it is underestimated by disgruntled students. The Coyote Club and the Hostesses perform a real service, however, and the Student Body as a whole appreciates all of the fine things they do.

Office Trainers

The tasks of the Office Trainers are many and varied and naturally range according to the departments for which they work

Students enrolled in this class spend the biggest part of their time doing stenographic work in the offices of department heads. Work for other teachers is done by them also through these offices. Students working in the Administrative Offices deviate from stenography, however, for they operate the switchboard, distribute mail, and care for the general work that accumulates there

The Ticket Office is the clearing house for all Office Trainers' work, and it is here that they do everything from keeping track of ticket sales to doing mimeograph and ditto work for all departments. They even do bookkeeping work for the Publications Department and all four classes.

There is no greater material factor in the successful presentation of a dramatic event than a staff of well trained, courteous ushers. In serving this particular end Phoenix Union High School has organized the Auditorium Club. This efficient club is composed entirely of girls.

Performing a task similar to that of the Auditorium Club is the boys' organization, the Stadium Club. This unit handles the seating problem at all outdoor athletic events or pageants held in the Phoenix High Stadium. Serving, too, in a wider scope, the Stadium Club also officiates at athletic events in the Gymnasium.

The greatest drawback of intramural sports in years gone by was that there were seldom enough faculty members to officiate at the games and consequently disputes were not infrequent. The advent of the Officials Club this year has changed all that, however, and now students in this club referee all intramural sports.

The Friendship Club makes an earnest endeavor to bring the girls of Phoenix High closer together in friendlier relations, and, with this ideal purpose as the ultimate goal, the Friendship Club is more than a desirable project.

Going even one step farther than the Friendship Club, the Luncheon Club offers social training to girls who bring their lunches, meeting every day in the Social Hall of the Eighth Building.

Truth has been stranger than fiction from time immemorial, and consequently statistics are appalling.

Our own cafeteria exemplifies this fact. It seems that the lively, hungry Student Body consumes in one school year, 185 tons of meat and 92 1/2 tons of potatoes.

Ninety five thousand five hundred and sixty rolls and buns are also needed to satisfy the many glutinous appetites. When thirsty, the students nonchalantly devour 29,600 bottles of milk and 9080 bottles of pop. Then, to top it all off, their ravenous little tummies find room to pack away some 4500 gallons of ice cream and 66,600 Milk Nickels.

Phoenix High students have a notoriously unsweet tooth, and have little time to masticate more than 2575 boxes of candy in the course of 37 weeks.

The question naturally arises as to what happens to all the wrappers of the thousands of candy bars and Milk Nickels. First, they are strewn about the campus, and then the Maintenance Crew swings into action. Statistically speaking, it costs exactly $62.50 per month for this ground cleaning operation.

Needless to say, the students would be sadly disappointed to come to school and find the interior of the school unswept. Again the Maintenance Crew steps into the scene and in a valiant endeavor to sweep some 422,609 square feet of floor space, they use a ton of sweeping compound each week.

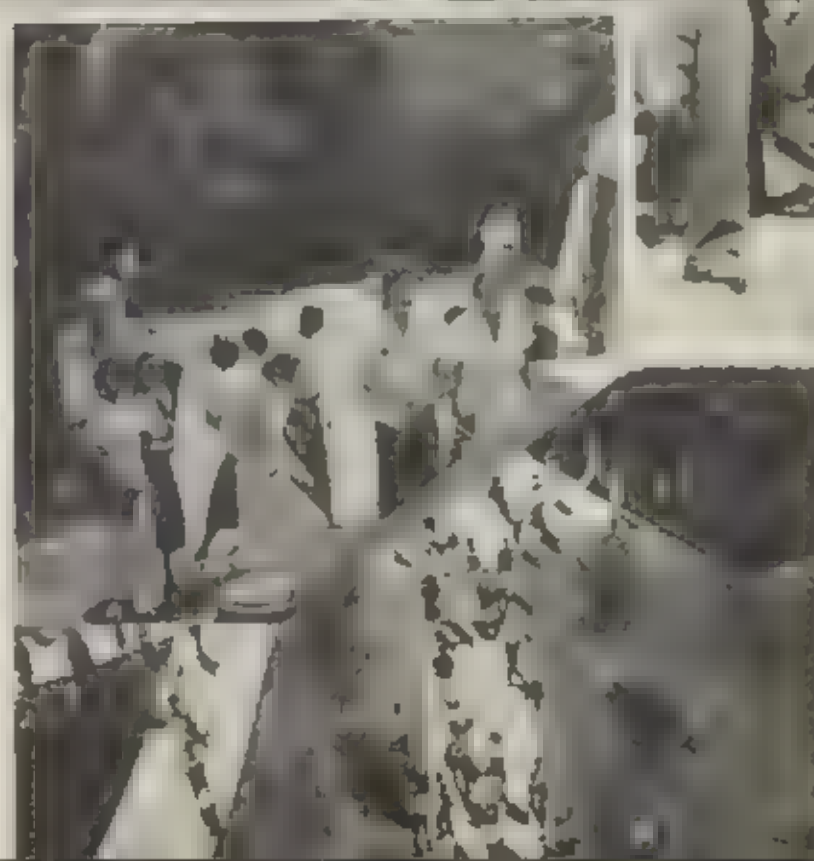

Another gigantic task is the dusting of 5028 desks in the school rooms, exclusive of about 100 tables located in the library, Departmental offices, commercial rooms, and other spots throughout the school.

AFTER HIGH SCHOOL, WHAT?

PHOENIX JUNIOR COLLEGE

Offers the Answer to This Question

MAKE YOUR PLANS NOW

Phoenix Junior College offers you a scholarship for two years with the advantages of any other scholarship and many which no other college can supply. For the past years the College has enrolled slightly more than sixty per cent of the Phoenix Union High School graduating classes. Most of these students make good. If you have done satisfactory work in high school you can expect to derive much benefit from continuing your education in college. During two years of college work the opportunity usually comes to finish in the University. During the last summer transcripts were sent to forty-five colleges and universities throughout the United States. The economic and social order will demand a college education of your generation. Have you accepted the challenge which this situation presents?

CONSIDERATIONS OF IMPORTANCE

Old friendships and new are nicely blended
Fine intra-mural and intercollegiate sports and activities are provided
A varied and enjoyable social program that is vital to collegiate life
Library and laboratory facilities that are adequate
A superior faculty whose members are partners in learning
Two years of college work where Freshmen and Sophomores are accepted
Total expense to the student, from twenty to seventy dollars per year

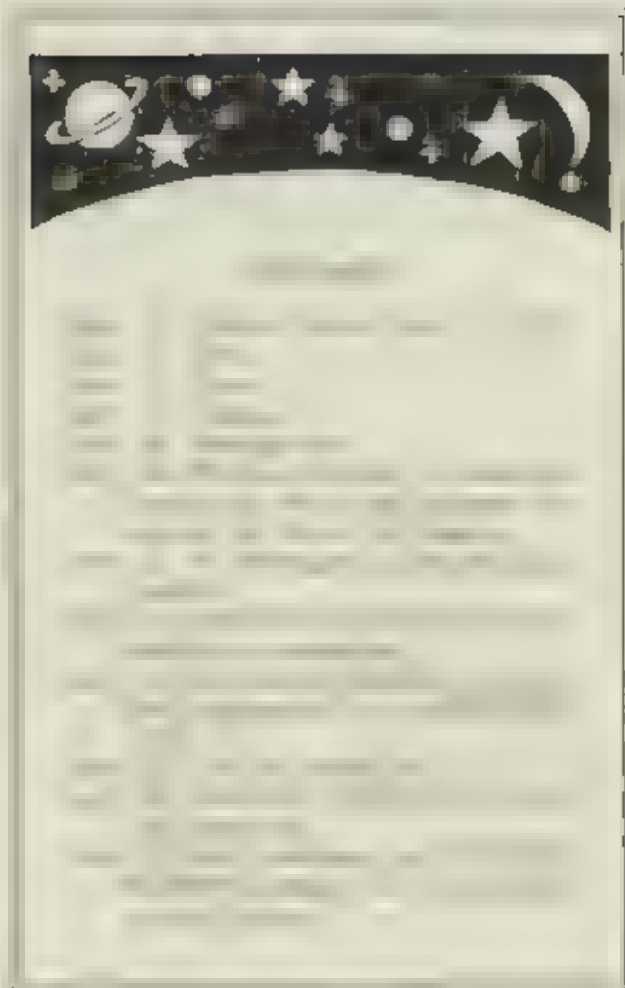

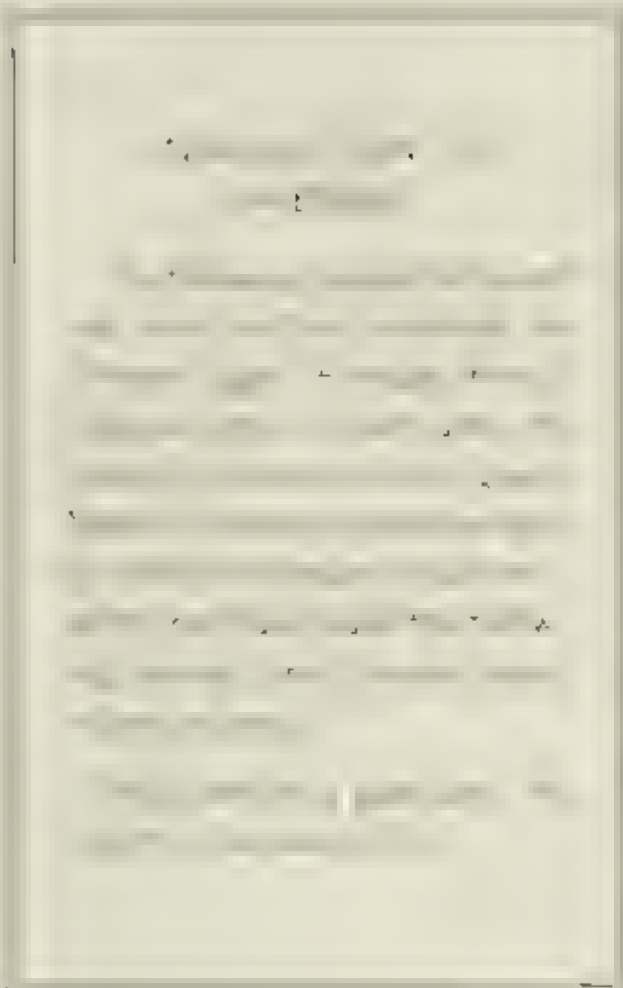

SUGGESTIONS

When selecting a college one must make certain of the recognition accorded. Phoenix Junior College is accredited by the largest and most exacting accrediting agency in America.

So high is the standing of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools that students from the members of this association are welcomed in colleges of all other accrediting agencies. You may transfer Phoenix Junior College credit point for point anywhere at any time.

If you decide to go elsewhere, the Registrar, the Deans and the Faculty of Phoenix Junior College will still be glad to help you.

Choosing a bank to do business with is important to young people — tomorrow's businessmen and business women.

The young man or woman who opens a savings account and adds to it regularly, who consults the bank about his plans for entering business, who wins and keeps the confidence of the bank, has gained a valuable ally.

Accounts of young men and women are invited.

REPUTATION IS VALUABLE

A good reputation is one of the most valuable business assets you can have. Other things being equal, the man of unquestioned reputation can get business more quickly and with less red tape than the man whose reputation is somewhat doubtful.

A man with a long, established reputation, with his back to the wall, is always making money and his competitors are always losing money.
